OMAHA, Neb. -- An Omaha girl is planning a missionary project that seeks a different kind of conversion.

Mikayla Rye, 10, is the mind behind Messy Missionaries. The Omaha Christian Academy student has been pushing for a day of cleaning at several spots around the metro, and she'll get her wish when volunteers gather Saturday.

"My mom and I were walking around outside and I told her we should get some friends together and clean up the trash because it was messy, and she said it was a good idea," Rye said.

The girl and her mother, Tara, are recruiting for more help.

"We would love to have anyone in the community who would like to come bring a garbage sack and gloves to protect your hands and we will have maps to all the sites," Tara Rye said.

Omaha Christian Academy is located at 56th and L streets. For more information call 402-399- 9565.
